€16.500,00

Eduard Kasparides (1858 - 1926), "Klosterneuburg" (Klosterneuburg Abbey in autumn), ca. 1915, oil on canvas on cardboard, signed

Eduard Kasparides studied at the Academy of Fine Arts Vienna under Josef Trenkwaldner, Carl Wurzinger and Christian Griepenkerl. He became a member of the artist's association Hagenbund and the Gesellschaft Bildender Künste. He is renowned for his magnificent sunsets and atmospheric, almost meditative landscapes. In this painting Kasparides chooses a characteristic color palette: rich green-yellow contrasts with the purple, pink and blue pastel tones of the evening sky. A streamlet leads us from the birch grove straight into the wood into the background, where in the sky, a majestic cloud wraps around the towers of the church. As covered in a haze, the church, and towers of Klosterneuburg Abbey appear in the far distance. The peaceful evening atmosphere invites the viewer to linger and pause, enjoying the idyll.
