Floral candelabrum five-flame, Gustav Gurschner, Berndorfer Metallwarenfabrik, mod.no. 110 (550), patinated bronze, ca. 1900, signed

The floral Viennese Jugendstil chandelier by Gustav Gurschner shows a structure recurring in his designs.

A rectangular-looking, precisely delineated head with floral elements is created on tall slender strands. The round base, from which the two gold-colored strands spring, appears in dark bronze. This shape and color is repeated at the top edge. Elliptically, the two parts of the stem meet to branch out, adorned with delicate flowers. At the top edge, the chandelier finishes with a row of five grommets, again in a dark color. Thus, a beautiful frame is stretched between the lower and upper end of the work. On the lower right part of the stem is the sculptor's signature, "G. GURSCHNER".

The strong expression of this excellently crafted candlestick comes not least due to its impressive height of 46 cm.
