Pair of two-flame candelabra with stylized animals, Karl Hagenauer, Werkstatte Hagenauer Vienna, ca. 1927, nickel-plated brass, marked

This pair of two-flame candlesticks is an outstanding testimony to the early works with stylized, figurative representations and ornaments of the Hagenauer workshop. In Hagenauer's early works, the influences of Josef Hoffmann and Dagobert Peche are strongly evident.
