€13.000,00

Purple wineglass with conical cuppa, design Otto Prutscher, Meyr's Neffe for E. Bakalowits Sohne, circa 1908, mod.no. I 198, cut glass

Otto Prutscher designed the colorful glasses with their characteristic cut-decoration for Viennese glass editor E. Bakalowits Söhne in 1907. Without doubt they represent one of the most iconic forms of the geometric Viennese Jugendstil. As early as 1907 they were prominently featured in Deutsche Kunst und Dekoration, a renowned monthly magazine entirely dedicated to contemporary modern art. In profound articles leading columnists of their time discussed innovative works of painting, sculpture, architecture and interior design in this periodical publication. In the following years, the glasses also appeared in other publications, which speaks for the enormous success of the design among contemporaries. As classics of Viennese Jugendstil, these glasses with cut decoration have gone down in design history and they can be found in collections of leading museums of arts and crafts.
