WINE GLASS OTTO PRUTSCHER CA. 1912

Wineglass with cut decoration, design Otto Prutscher, manufactured by Johann Meyr's Neffe, Adolf, circa 1912, colored glass with cut decor

---

Prutscher's glasses undoubtedly represent one of the most famous executions of the geometric Viennese Jugendstil. Back in 1908, they were prominently featured in the renowned art magazine "Deutsche Kunst und Dekoration". In the following years, they appeared in various publications, which amplified the enormous success of those designs.

The thin stem with a cut pattern (squares and dots) creates an interesting contrast to the cylindrical goblet. The transparent glass is covered with manganese and yellow decorations. The decoration is cut on the lower two-thirds of the cup and on the upper third a crossed, cut-out wave pattern with yellow dots is applied.
